Millionaire musician Macklemore is a great example of how smart business habits, unconventional approaches and thriftiness can really pay off, particularly when other factors align.

GET THRIFTY

Early on, record companies rejected Macklemore and Lewis. This forced the pair to find ways to release and market their music independently. Moreover, in addition to creating unique songs, the duo design and sell their own shirts and other merchandise to save more money.

PLAN FOR THE FUTURE AND SAVE MONEY

The duo's income is mainly from iTunes; a check comes in every 45 days. Songs are sold for $1, and the pair make 60 to 70 cents per song, which they split. Macklemore tours are another source of revenue, as are their T-shirts and merchandise.

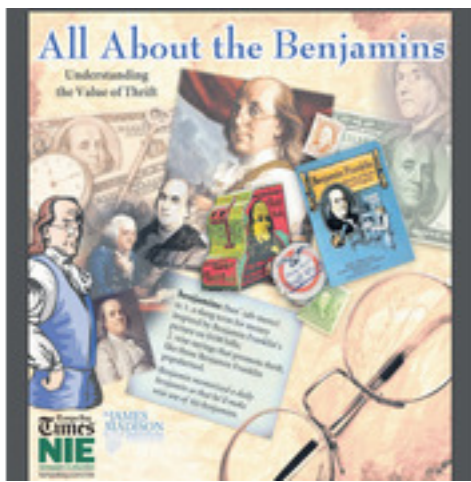

Plus, Macklemore actually does shop at thrift stores. "You know, I love thrift shopping," he told Celeste Headlee of NPR.

The faces on every U.S. bill in circulation include five American presidents and two founding fathers. Match the historical figures to the bill's denomination.

The image shows a matching game interface. At the top, there is a grid of bill denominations: $5, $10, and $100. Below the denominations, there are cards with historical figures. One card is clearly visible, showing Abraham Lincoln. Two blue cards are overlaid on the grid: one with a white apple icon and another with a white lowercase letter 'a'. The background is a light gray grid.
